

OpenOverlay is a program which opens an application on a computer (done with main.js).
OpenOverlay.html is what shows the content inside the application window, with each of its sub-elements being the various displays or buttons the user can click to interact with the game League of Legends. The .js sub-elements are what create the functionality, and their respective .css files are what control how they look and appear to the user.

